

REBA EDLSON TRIES TO CONVERT WARDEN

Twelve Hearty Meals She Preaches I. W. W. Logic to Handsome Jailor.

HOPES FOR APPEAL TO-DAY

Miss Davis Glad Hunger Strike Is Off and Forebode Feeding Unnecessary.

The visitors' bell clanging insistently in the warden's office of the Queens county jail over in Long Island City yesterday afternoon failed utterly to overcome the voice of a young woman upstairs in the old brown prison who was discussing the warden's of the human race and cataloging the ill Bill Haywood with the saints.

The young woman was the I. W. W. vivandiere, Reba Edelson, who, refreshed by a light, special luncheon of broiled steak, creamed potatoes, bread and butter, apple pie and coffee, was trying to convert the handsome young warden, Henry Schlicht, to the tenets of the I. W. W.

When the warden answered a summons from a reporter for this story he looked a trifle exhausted. He was hoarse. Arguing with Reba Edelson (she is known as Reba to the agitators of Rutgers Square) is a job for a well, strong man, and the warden has been suffering from a touch of cold and wasn't in the pink of condition.

"Yes," volunteered Mr. Schlicht, "Miss Edelson's hunger strike has been called off. This was it right this morning. She has decided that there is no use to starve herself, since that won't obtain her release from prison, and she has been taking her meals regularly since last night.

"Of course we had to be careful at first what we gave her to eat because she had gone without food for forty hours. Deputy Commissioner Burdett, however, sent over chocolate and a few delicacies for Miss Edelson last night. She enjoyed them and this morning she ate a hearty breakfast of chops, potatoes, bread and butter and coffee. At lunch today she ate a quantity of substantial things and I have no doubt that her appetite for supper this evening will be excellent.

"Why did she decide to eat?" Well, I hardly know myself, except that she believes now that her friends will be able to get her out of jail on a writ of habeas corpus which the men mean to apply for today, I understand. But we were pretty nice to her and maybe that had something to do with her changed attitude. I certainly never saw her so cheerful before.

"As a matter of fact, Miss Edelson's decision to pay a little attention to her food was a great relief to Miss Katharine B. Davis, the Commissioner of Correction; to Miss Davis's subordinates, and to the prison authorities. When the young woman was taken from the workhouse to the Queens county jail the warden was afraid she would have to be fed forcibly.

Dr. John Quigley reported that Miss Edelson was in good physical trim. Then she was placed in the custody of Matron Mary J. Daly, who talked to her in motherly fashion. The warden rejoined that she persisted in starving herself it might be necessary to place a charge of attempted suicide against her and that she would be kept where she was to answer a felony charge as well as the misdemeanor case against her. So Miss Edelson thought over her situation and finally told her friends that she was going to eat. If she had not come to that decision today the prison authorities would have found some humane way of making her eat.

Justus Sheffield, who is acting as counsel for the young woman, will argue before Judge Mulqueen today an application for an appeal of the three months sentence. Miss Edelson's friends sent word to her yesterday that the chances were good that she would be released in a few days.

WOMAN WHIPS NEWSPAPER MEN

Mrs. Burstein of Cleveland Vents Wrath on Editor and Reporter.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 26.—Mrs. S. P. Burstein, 3515 Woodland avenue, angered by an article that had appeared in a local paper, the True Voice, obtained personal satisfaction yesterday by horsewhipping two newspaper men whom she adjudged responsible for the article. Mrs. Burstein declined assistance from friends and refused to notify men members of her family before the lash was applied.

Gershon Bader, editor, and A. Persky, a reporter, were victims of Mrs. Burstein's wrath. Bader was carrying out when the woman assaulted him at his office door, but he took the licking without returning a single blow.

HEARSE RUNS DOWN WOMAN.

Chinese Mission Teacher May Die From Fractured Skull.

Confused by the whirl of traffic at Forty-second street and Third avenue yesterday afternoon, a Chinese hearse, driven by a man named Mr. Wallace, 61 years old, of 411 West 114th street, stepped in front of a hearse owned by a burial society of 245 Grant street and was knocked down. She was moved to Bellevue Hospital suffering from a fractured skull.

The woman's identity was learned through the Rev. Huie Kin, pastor of a Chinese mission at 223 East Thirty-first street, who said that Mrs. Wallace was a teacher in his mission. When Mrs. Wallace did not appear at the school for the funeral, Mr. Huie Kin started a search for her. He found her in Bellevue. It is feared she will die.

BOY AND HIS RESCUER SAVED FROM QUAGMIRE

Jamaica Bay Boatman and a Wandering Mexican Volunteer Hauled In by Rope.

Thomas Gerard, a Jamaica Bay boatman, who lives in a boat-house, heard a child's voice screaming "stress yesterday afternoon and traced it to a brown curly head just visible above the quagmire, flying feet and all. He jumped in and hauled the boy into the mire and was soon up to his waist, but not near the boy.

Mrs. Gerard and Gus Dunham saw his plight and hauled him out. The boy was just as one of the boards turned over and left him sprawling in the ooze. Dunham found a long rope, made a loop and pulled it up to Gerard, who made it fast under his shoulders and then grabbed the boy.

Several men in the little settlement on the edge of the creek had come running and they and Dunham hauled the man and boy to safety. The child was able to say that his name was Philby Miller and that he didn't know where he was. He had been in the mire and was soon up to his waist, but not near the boy.

Patrolman Bert Green of the Liberty avenue station in East New York took charge of the boy and he was removed to Bradford street hospital. After the mud had been scraped from him he exhibited signs of a high fever. He had been in the mire for some time and had none the worse for having swallowed large quantities of Old Mill Creek. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Miller, who lives with his parents, his brother Ralph and sister at 412 Van Sicken avenue, East New York.

It was found that he had climbed on the bank of the creek and had got near the old mill race from which Old Mill Creek makes its way to Jamaica Bay. Whether he tumbled in from the bridge there or just walked out into the quagmire he couldn't say. His brother Ralph, who is 7 years old, and Evelyn Glassburg, who is 5, said that all three of them had left home to go to Mexico, but that they had lost Philip.

Crowd Seen Lineman Killed by Wire and Fall From Pole.

A crowd of churchgoers passing the corner of New York and Lyman avenues, Clifton, Staten Island, at 9 o'clock last evening saw John P. Puccio, 34 Sixth avenue, of 512 Castleton avenue, West New Brighton, instantly killed. Puccio had climbed a pole to repair a broken feed wire. When he reached the top he found he had left his gloves on the ground. Thinking he could fix the break without the rubber gloves he reached out for the wire and 1,700 volts passed through his body. He was thrown to the ground and was killed by the Richmond Light and Railroad Company. He was married.

The buggy was knocked over and the driver, George J. Fox, was thrown to the pavement. The chauffeur was arrested on a charge of reckless driving. He gave his name as Arthur P. Jones of 117 Waverley avenue, Brooklyn.

FRIARS BID GOOD-BY TO MAUDE AT FEAST

London Actor, Sailing Home To-morrow, Is Honor Guest at Dinner.

ORATORY AND BEAUTY MIX

Hon. Hitchcock in Eruption Releases Presidential Announcement About Hens.

Cyril Maude was started back toward that dear London last night entirely surrounded by floods of oratory and an overflow of femininity, supposing, which is impossible, that a word so suggestive of superfluity as overflow may be used when billows of Laurette Taylor, Margery Maude, Mrs. George Hobans, &c., are in mind.

Mr. Maude really does not start for home until to-morrow. Nevertheless there was enough oratory at the dinner given in his honor by the Friars at the Actor last night to cause him to shudder happily toward the dock whether he wanted to or not.

Perhaps the happening of most moment that erupted during the dinner was the announcement by the Hon. Raymond Hitchcock that in 1916 Hitchcock is going to run for President of the United States.

"And I'd-I mean I'd make just as good a President as these other fellows," said Hon. Hitchcock during the fervent speech that was received riotously by a jammed ballroom and overflowing balconies. "Take my opponent, Roosevelt. 'Elect me,' he says, 'and I'll reduce the cost of beef, of vegetables, of eggs.' 'Gosh,' his ha ha! 'Gosh darn it, he hasn't any more influence with a hen than I have.'"

And so it went. Hon. Hitchcock's oration was perhaps the greatest political speech delivered in this country since Patrick Henry detonated.

Mr. Maude had a chair at the right elbow of Friar Abbot John Runsey, from which point he could gaze up—and did frequently—at his daughter, who entered the balcony with Miss Laurette Taylor amid applause. At the speaker's table also were Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson, Dudley Field Malone, J. Hartley Manners of the Only Their Husbands Club, Bainbridge Colby, Renold Wolf, De Wolf Hopper, Charles Burnham, Shepherd William, Courleugh of the Lambs and Hon. Hitchcock.

After William Houston had sung the Victor Herbert-Charles Emerson Cook "Here to the Friars" song Abbot Runsey proposed a toast to President Wilson, a toast that in the circumstances brought forth rousing cheers instead of the usual applause. There was another outburst of enthusiasm when Dudley Field Malone touched upon the matter most in the nation's mind.

"In these days of wireless and other intercommunication between the nations of the world," said Mr. Malone, "it is especially true that we can take no special care for peace or for war, unless we have the good opinion of the nations of the world. And I believe we have it and shall continue to have it." [Long applause.]

Mr. Maude voiced his thanks for all the pleasant things that have come to him and Mrs. Maude during their stay. The other speakers were De Wolf Hopper, Bainbridge Colby, Mr. Runsey, Renold Wolf and Hon. Hitchcock.

UNIONS IN NEW YORK GROWING.

Greater Membership Now Than Ever Before in Their History.

ALBANY, April 26.—Organized labor in New York State had a greater membership on September 30, the close of the fiscal year, than ever before in its history, and it added more members to its ranks during the last fiscal year than during any previous twelve months. The total membership was 665,248, of which 78,522 were women.

The membership increase during the year was 138,576, or 26.3 per cent. Of this total there was an increase of 116,945 during the first half of the fiscal year.

There were 313 new organizations formed during the year, but the net increase was reduced to 174 through the disbanding of 139 organizations and the amalgamation of thirty other bodies. The organizations numbered 2,642, the high water mark of labor unions in the State.

These facts are shown in a special bulletin on organized labor just issued by Commissioner James M. Lynch of the Department of Labor.

New York city had 29 per cent. of the organizations and 74 per cent. of the membership, the increase there being sixty-seven unions and 114,084 members. New York city total membership was 491,782.

Outside of New York city, the greatest increase in membership was in Buffalo, where fifteen unions, with 19,534 new members, gave the union men a total of 28,784. Rochester was third with a total of 20,829, having gained seventeen new unions, with 4,775 members.

In membership every industry gained, and every industry save one, tobacco, which remained stationary, gained in the number of organizations.

The increase of men in the organized trades of the State was 10 per cent., and of women 11 per cent. "This more than doubling of the union membership of women increased the proportion which organized workers of the State form to 11.8 per cent. The increase of women was localized industrially in clothing and textiles, and geographically in New York city. The number of organizations composed of women exclusively increased from sixteen to twenty-four.

NEW YORK OFFICE 229 West 58th St. AND ALL GOOD DEALERS

WILL TEACH WIVES TO SHUN BAD FOOD

Civic Federation Will Instruct Nation in Selection of Its Diet.

The plan and scope committee of the food and drugs department of the National Civic Federation has arranged to make a national survey to determine what will be most helpful in obtaining pure food and pure drugs for the American people. The work will be prosecuted by trained investigators and by means of a series of questions which will be sent to persons with expert knowledge on the subject.

Those from whom replies will be solicited include Federal and State food, drug and dairy commissioners, State health officials, municipal health officials in 5,000 cities and towns, agricultural chemists, professors of chemistry in universities and colleges, members of associations of food and drug manufacturers and representative wholesale and retail dealers in foods and drugs, and all organizations and experts dealing with the food and drug problem.

The committee having charge of this work consists of Vincent Astor, chairman, New York; Dr. Carl A. Albarg, chief of the bureau of food and drugs, Department of Health, New York; Miss Maude Wetmore, chairman of the women's department, National Civic Federation, New York; Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, Washington; John M. Stahl, Farmers National Congress, Chicago; and Edward N. Breitung, ore producer, Negaunee, Mich., and New York.

There are a few of the many questions which Federal, State and municipal officials will be asked to answer: "To what extent is the meat bought in the average market from diseased animals? Fat and decomposed and restored by the use of chemicals? Filthy because of unsanitary surroundings?"

"In the average market what proportion of poultry is represented as fresh when it is in fact cold storage?" To what extent has the cold storage poultry and the average market use of such cold storage, and to what extent is such deterioration injurious?"

"What is clean milk? Is a clean milk really found in the average supplies of our cities? What is the significance of a high bacterial count arising from 'uncleanliness' from age? To what extent is such milk responsible for disease in the average family?"

"To what extent are eggs misrepresented as to whether fresh or cold storage?" To what extent is there deterioration from a poor quality of eggs when entering cold storage? From too long storage, from keeping them too long after leaving storage?"

"To what extent are the drugs of the average pharmacist true to standard? To what extent is substitution practiced? To what extent have proprietary remedies advertised to the public, a real therapeutic value being claimed when no real benefits are to be obtained from the use of habit-forming drugs?"

It has been decided to appoint a sub-committee to draft a model health and sanitary code for use in smaller towns and rural villages, and a special committee will be named to draft a schedule of instructions to housewives on how to select wholesome food from the market and how to protect it from deterioration.
